Expats

For expats tax legislation can be a maze. In addition to national tax legislation, you also have to deal with double taxation conventions and social security laws. A lot of information about tax is in Dutch, which can make it difficult to understand. We can provide help to understand the maze and give you advice on the matter.

We will tell you in which country you are subjected to tax and how to fill in your tax assessment. Furthermore, we will inform you in which country you are socially insured and take action to prevent double insurance.

(Former) employees or other persons working for international law organisations or embassies

Are you working for an organisation of the United Nations or the European Union? Or maybe you work for an embassy. Perhaps you are an expert, consultant, contractor, working as a defence counsel or working as part of the defence team. If you are an employee you probably have tax privileges. How do you file a tax assessment in that case? And how do things work if you are not an employee? At Syncount we specialise in the tax affairs of people who work or have worked for an embassy or international law organisation.

Innovation advice

Do you have a company and do you want to innovate? Syncount can help you further. Subsidies for innovation are possible in Dutch legislation. In addition, attractive tax schemes may apply. Contact us for advice on this subject.
